Zdzisław Beksiński est un artiste polonais connu pour son esthétique et son travail surréaliste dystopique. Ses peintures, photos et sculptures décrivent une imagerie macabre centrée sur la mort, la décomposition et la mortalité. Né le 24 février 1929 à Sano en Pologne, Beksiński n'a pas d'éducation artistique mais étudie l'architecture à l'université de technologie de Cracovie. Après l'obtention de son diplôme, il trouve un emploi de concepteur de voitures dans sa ville natale, ce qui lui laisse du temps libre pour se consacrer à la photographie. Il se fait finalement renvoyer après avoir atteint le succès en tant que peintre en 1967, ses œuvres sont jugées dérangeantes par le grand public. Tout au long de sa carrière, Beksiński s'intéresse à la fantaisie, au sadomasochisme et à l'érotisme, comme dans Sadist's Corset (1957), photographie d'un dos nu de femme attaché et serré à l'aide de ficelle noire. Beksiński meurt assassiné le 21 février 2005 à Varsovie à l'âge de 75 ans.
